

David L. Unruh

David L. Unruh is Associate Vice President for Alumni Relations & Development and Executive Director of University Development at the University of Chicago. He is responsible for the day to day operation of central development programs, leading a team of 7 assistant/associate vice presidents with oversight of leadership & principal gifts, presidential & trustee development support, gift planning, corporate & foundation relations, strategic communications, campaign planning, prospect management & prospect research, donor recognition, stewardship & special events, and development operations. Prior to joining Chicago in July of 2007, David served Carnegie Mellon University and the University of Pennsylvania in a variety of major gift roles from 1998-2007, including Director of Major Gifts at each institution. He began his career in admissions and financial aid at Colby College, where he earned his BA in History in 1991. David also holds an MA in College Student Personnel from Bowling Green State University.