

Elizabeth Halajian is the Director of Development at Chicago's Harris Theater for Music and Dance in Millennium Park. She has worked in arts and culture for more than a decade, with experience spanning major gift fundraising, board relations, annual fundraising, special event management, arts marketing, community engagement, dance education, stage management, and dance performance.

In her five seasons with the Harris Theater, she has driven growth in every area of the Theater's contributed income, including increasing the donor base by 40%, establishing a planned giving society, leading fundraising events grossing more than $1 million, and formalizing the Theater's sponsorship program.

Elizabeth holds a B.F.A. in Dance Performance from Butler University and is a graduate of Interlochen Arts Academy.